

My medium I choose a 12x24-inch canvas for my piece because the connections what I draw is related to my emotions of sadness that represent the day and night sky, remembering my family for many generations. The ocean represent how I look back as a memory of the past of my grandparents of both of my mom and dad parents and gives me a smooth breeze wind and the beach it makes me feel calm. I would visit them at Ching Chung Koon temple to remember them. Sadly, I never get to know my dad's grandparents ever in my life only the photo of them. When I was little my mom's grandparents used to take care of me from home. I used liquid acrylic paints and watercolours on canvas.
